

Hello, my name is Brandon Peters, I am from the ƛaʔamun (Sliammon) First Nation. I am the Indigenous Education Enhancement Teacher (AEET) for Point Grey, John Oliver, University Hill and David Thompson Secondary Schools. I have been teaching since 2013 and started my career with the Vancouver School Board in early 2014. I just finished my Masters in Education at the University of British Columbia in 2018. One of my main goals in my role as an AEET is to support Indigenous students to achieve greater success while at school.

I will be here to provide additional academic support and scaffolding to ensure that students are provided with the necessary tools to achieve their goals. Some of the most important pillars of our mandate is to help Indigenous students master academics to the best of their ability, to help foster an inclusive environment of belonging and to help Indigenous students feel connected to their space of learning. I'm also an extra set of ears if the student needs some emotional support or an extra set of eyes to monitor their progress. I am also here to support student's families in a variety of capacities. If parents and families are in need of support, I encourage them to send me email and I'll do my best to assist in any way I can.

Over the course of this academic year I will be working to infuse Indigenous knowledge and perspectives into the BC curriculum, through workshops, presentations and hands on activities and events around the school.

If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to contact me

čėčėhəθėč (I Thank you)

Sincerely,

Brandon Peters

Indigenous Education Enhancement Teacher, Point Grey, John Oliver, University Hill and David Thompson Secondary Schools.
bpeters@vsb.bc.ca